How Pension Plans Can Promote Workers' Rights When Making Private Equity Investments

SAVE THE DATE

Friday, Dec. 9, 2022 • 1 p.m. ET

With the growth of private equity as an asset class, pension plans are seeking new ways to respect workers' rights, increase health and safety, improve employee productivity and retention, create high-paying jobs with good benefits, and generate competitive, risk-adjusted investment returns.

Hear from front-line workers and pension plan representatives why investor action is critically needed to promote responsible human capital management and long-term, sustainable business practices in the private equity marketplace.
